Speculators Think His Statement Indicates a Lurking Evil.

MARKET SEVERELY PRESSED

Bank Statement and Anxiety Regarding Russian Situation Responsible.

(By Associated Press.)

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, October 28.—A number of decidedly adverse factors had to be contended with in the stock market to-day and it showed the effect of pressure throughout the short session. The pressure did not become acute, however, statement. The authorized interview given out by President Harriman, of the Union Pacific was until after the appearance of the bank the Union Pacific was regarded in speculative circles as of sinister import.

Foreign markets show a growing anxiety over the course of events in Russin and there was reflected depre-in this market on this account. A in this market on this account. A further advance in sterling exchange and a fall in Paris strengthened the conviction that gold will go out to Paris next week and estimates current pointed to the possibility of a heavy outward movement. The bank statement showed only a nominal decrease in the surplus but the heavy gain reported in cash was regarded with distrust owing to its large excess over any previous estimate based on the known movements of money. The reported loan expansion of unwards of 15,000,000 was also regarded with disquietude. The selling in the last half hour was rather precipitated and although some railies occurred by reason of hasty covering of shorts by the successful bears, the closing was unsettled and irregular.

Not to Be Caught.

Not to Be Caught.

A certain London corn chandler had just engaged an assistant, who halled from a small village near Leeds. He was not remarkable for his intelligence. His friends, realizing this deficiency, had eviden'ly warned him against being caught by the sharp London people who would be certain to try and take a rise out of him. Full of this resolve not to be caught he began his duties. A customer entered the shop. "I want some bird seed, please." he said. The assistant grinned. The customer reneated his request, and the knowing villager spluttered with suppressed merriment. The customer, not outle knowing what to make of this extraordinary display, asked him in somewhat forrible language what was the matter. "It's no use," answered the verdant one, "the knows ta can not catch me. I know, I do." "Know what?" ask, ed the customer. "Birds groas from eggs, not seed!"—Birmingham (Eng.) Weekly Post.
